Request for material of Noctua pronuba

For a study of the ecological genetics of Noctua pronuba (LINN.), using the enzyme electrophoresis technique, frozen specimens are required from Europe, and especially North Africa. From each sample site 200 individuals should be collected. Ideally, they should be killed in ethyl acetate (or similar), immediately frozen and shipped in dry ice by rapid post to Oxford. However, non-frozen material can also be used for scoring forewing colour. For further details, please write to Rob Hammond, School of Biological & Molecular Sciences, Oxford Brookes University, Gipsy Lane Campus, Headington, Oxford OX3 0BP, GB.
